BANQUET TO GEN. CURRIE FINE SUCCESS

Many Distinguished Officers Present.

CURRIE SPOKE.

Commended Past Work Of the McGill C.O.T.C.

The banquet held in the Union last night in honor of General Sir Arthur Currie proved to be a decided success. Many distinguished officers who had served under General Currie were present, and the hall was well filled with McGill war veterans and undergraduates.

The banquet itself was well served, and the G.W.V.A. band played many popular war songs, which brought back memories to those present.

At the conclusion of the banquet, Lieut.-Col. Starke called on Dean Currie to propose the toast to the guest and on Mr. Leary to second the toast.

In his opening words, Dean Currie dwelt on the great honor it was to him to propose the toast to so honored a guest. He thought that Gen. Currie as he sat there in the height of his military glory, might be thinking of the days of peace, when he had been a civilian in Western Canada, with none of the anxieties of a great war hanging over his head. Canada, although a war in a manner worthy of a red-peaceful nation, had gone forth to the blooded country. By her wonderful response to the call of duty, she had upheld the belief that the brave nations of the world are those of the North. The rigorous climatic conditions of northern countries bred a spirit of hardihood and courage in her sons, and even the Germans recognized the strength and virility of Canadians, for they deemed them their most stubborn enemies.

Dean Currie then commented on the remarkable career of Gen. Currie. He had gone over as Colonel in command of a battalion, and had risen to the supreme command of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. His good qualities were known to all. His care about details, his anxiety for his men, his courageous attitude in times of peril were some of his outstanding characteristics. His soldiers knew him as a tried and proved general, and his appeal to the troops at a critical time was one of the most powerful appeals ever made by a general to an army.

JUNIOR TEAM UPHOLDS THE HONOR OF MCG.

Won Game In Last Half By Narrow Margin.

SCORE: 4-3.

Fighting an uphill game and presenting a stonewall defence, McGill Juniors staged a come-back at the Mount Royal Arena last evening, and stick-handled their way to victory over the Panthers. The game was closely contested from beginning to end, and from the sound of the starting whistle to the clang of the bell announcing full time, the issue was always in doubt.

The game was competently handled by E. Rolands, and although it became rough in spots, and quite a few penalties were inflicted, it was never beyond the Juniors' control.

During the first period the McGill players were outclassed by the superior stamina and combination of the opposing forwards.

The second period began with the score 2-1 in favor of the Panthers, and McGill skated on the ice determined to pull the game out of the fire. However, their opponents were the first to sting the net for a counter, making the score sheet read 3-1 against McGill. Shaughnessy's men now proved of what stuff they were made, running up the goals in succession, netting the last only thirty seconds before the conclusion of the period. Thus did McGill once more turn seeming defeat into victory.

The Juniors are playing consistently good hockey, and the entire team

FENCERS HAVE SHORT WORKOUT

Experienced Amateurs Are Needed As Fencing Partners.

The fencers had a short workout yesterday afternoon. There were only a few men present, and unfortunately Mr. Long was unable to be with them. The men paired off and fenced several snappy bouts, practicing all the engagements, offensive and defensive methods which they had learnt hitherto.

The more advanced of the members who will fence at the Assault-at-Arms this year are rather handicapped at present by having so few experienced amateurs with whom to practice. It is understood that there are several men in the University who have fenced before, and it would be looked upon as a great kindness if any of these would fence a few bouts at some mutually convenient time with one of the fencers going to Kingston. Anyone kind enough to do this we might have a letter to that effect addressed to the secretary of the fencing club in the Arts Building.

STUDENTS' COUNCIL.

There will be a meeting of the Students' Council to-morrow afternoon (Sunday) at two o'clock. All members are asked to turn out.

COMMERCIAL SOCIETY.

A meeting of the above society will be held on Monday night, February second, at the McGill Union, at 8.15 p.m. Mr. McCullough will speak to the members on "Insurance." Refreshments will be served as usual. Members are requested to turn out sharp on time.

PHILOSOPHICAL CLUB.

To meet on Wednesday, Feb. 4th, at Stratcona Hall. A paper will be presented by Dr. J. W. Hickson on "The Rational Attitude and its Critics."

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

The following arrangements for the Memorial Service that is to be held in memory of the late Sir Wm. Osler:—
The students are requested to assemble at the McGill Union under the President of their year to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 and march to Christ Church Cathedral, where the services will be held, to the places allotted to them immediately behind the Faculty and medical practitioners of the city, in the centre of the church. The service will begin at 3.45 p.m.
All students interested in this Master of Medicine are urgently requested to attend this historic service.

The teams lined up as follows:

McGill: MacKenzie, Kelly.

MCGILL WILL PLAY U. OF T. AT THE ARENA

Red and White Will Play Hard To Win Victory To-Night.

FAST GAME EXPECTED.

Last Intercollegiate Game On Home Ice.

To-night, the McGill Seniors will play their second intercollegiate hockey match, when they will meet U. of T.'s crack sextette at the Mount Royal Arena, at 8.30 o'clock. This game will be a crucial one for the championship hopes of the Red and White, as it will be the last one that they will play on home ice, the remaining two being scheduled for Kingston and Toronto. If they do not come out on top to-night, they will be obliged to meet Toronto on their own ice with the disadvantage of having already lost one game to them.

The University of Toronto is reputed to have gathered together a formidable aggregation of hockey players. They played their last game on Wednesday, when they defeated the strong Aura Leo team in the Senior O.H.A. There is practically no doubt that they will give McGill a terrific fight, as they fully intend to make up in hockey for the severe defeats they suffered at the hands of the latter in Rugby last fall. Their goalkeeper is rated as probably the most valuable man on the team, being generally classed as one of the best net-minders in amateur ranks in Canada.

The McGill team has had plenty of time to prepare for the game to-night. The last game that they played was against UConn's a week ago, when they succeeded in grabbing the long end of a 3 to 1 score. Since then they have been getting in some good practice, so that they should now be in the finest possible condition. The team that will consist of Behan, "Boo" Anderson and Dineen on the forward line, Hensley and Cully on the defence, and Clarke in goal, with Earle Anderson and Peverley as substitutes.

There is no doubt that the McGill team will meet in the Varsity sextette they have come up against this season. One of the strongest organizations that The men will undoubtedly have to exhibit the best brand of hockey that they Extracts from Annual Report Letter of Murray G. Brooks, general secretary, Young Men's Christian Association, Colombo, Ceylon—The McGill Mission.

A Physical Drill Competition was held on July eighteenth in which 1,500 school boys took part. The instructor had been trained by the Young Men's Christian Association Physical Director, Mr. Cammack, and all the teachers had been members of his classes. The competition was the second of its kind held in Ceylon, and was a direct product of the new ideals for the care of the body which are being infused into the boys and young men through our Association. In two years, more than 465 teachers have been trained, and 300 of these have received certificates. Many of these men are Buddhists, and through their personal contact with Mr. Cammack have received a new and higher idea of the things for which Christianity stands. Mr. Cammack also introduced the Public Playground to Ceylon, and during the past year two new ones have been added to the first that was begun as an experiment in 1917. In their annual reports to the Government both the Mayor of Colombo and the Director of Education for the Island have mentioned the splendid work of SATURDAY, JANUARY 31, 1920.

AN EXPLANATION

There unfortunately appeared in yesterday's "Daily" an editorial dealing with the re-organization of the C.O.T.C. and with the inaugural dinner which was held last night. We are very sorry that a breach of confidence should have such an effect and that an editorial in our columns should brand as underhand a perfectly honest endeavor to re-organize a branch of physical and mental training in which many appear interested.

The editorial of yesterday was written, sent to press and included in the paper without our sanction or knowledge, and was in direct opposition to our opinion as expressed in the editorial column on two occasions. Since the twenty-third of this month we have published eight columns of news matter appealing for support for the scheme and outlining the benefits to be derived from it.

On the twenty-seventh of January the following editorial appeared in our columns. In it we say "It is needless to say anything on behalf of this institution, its merits are patent to all." To those who deplore its revival as indicating a tendency towards militarism we answer "Such an objection is of course unsound." Clearly the editorial policy which dictated this editorial could not possibly have sanctioned that of yesterday.

"The dinner to be given in honor of Sir Arthur Currie next Friday evening, affords McGill students a splendid opportunity of demonstrating their interest in the re-organization of the C.O.T.C. Quite apart from this consideration, we are to have with us the man who commanded the Canadian corps throughout the most momentous days of the war and it is at once the privilege and the duty of every man who can do so, to attend the dinner given in his honor.

As we have said, this date will also mark the re-commencement of the activities of the C.O.T.C. It is needless to say anything on behalf of this institution, its merits are patent to all. Nowadays, the word "pacifist" has fallen into general disrepute, and men and nations have realized anew the force of the old dictum, "Si vis pacem, para bellum." Canada has emerged from the war, poorer indeed in blood and treasure, but she has gained a measure of experience vouchsafed to few nations. Her army in the field, forced by circumstances to create the Men to meet the Hour, produced military prodigies almost overnight, many of whom will give us the benefit of their experience in these lecture courses.

There may be some who deplore the revival of this institution as indicating a tendency towards militarism. Such an objection is of course, unsound. The object of these courses is by no means to inculcate military doctrines, but simply to give such special instruction as may best equip men for a future emergency. Many returned students who served in the ranks during the war, have often been heard to say, half in jest, "In the next war, I'll wear a Sam Browne and a brass hat," and for such ambitious mortals the courses are of special appeal.

The lecturers are all men who have made reputations for themselves overseas, and who are well-qualified to instruct others. They include numerous officers who returned to Canada in command of units and all have a long period of overseas service to their credit. If therefore, these men are willing to give their time and energy, without thought of personal gain or kudos, surely we owe it to ourselves, no less than to them, to avail ourselves of the opportunities thus presented.

We may not all be able to become Curries in that mythical "next war" but we can at least qualify ourselves to fill positions of honor and responsibility such as have been obtained by those veterans who will lecture to us."

The following day we published an editorial note, in which we asked those who had previously spoken in favor of the revival of the C.O.T.C. to support it, and to solicit the help of their fellow students. We reprint that note to-day.

"We noted at the semi-annual meeting of the Students' Society, which was held in the Union a few months ago, that many present seemed decidedly in favor of the re-organization of the C.O.T.C. Now that the opportunity of acting in accord with their assertions is presented few seem willing to back up their words with actions.

For several days past notices have appeared in the various buildings calling the attention of the students to the inaugural dinner of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, at which Sir Arthur Currie is to be the guest of honor. Those who wish to attend are asked to sign their names below in order that an estimate may be made of the number to be present. A careful survey of the lists fails to reveal a score of names.

If the C.O.T.C. is to be a success it must have student backing, and those who seemed so anxious to have it revived should, in all consistency, be just as anxious to give it their own undivided support and to solicit that of their fellow students."

It grieves us to think that our editorial column should contain an article which outlines the opinions, which we must stigmatize as unfounded, of an individual and which hence should have appeared as correspondence. Unfortunately we can do little now, except to repeat that we entirely disapprove of yesterday's article and were unaware that it was to be slipped past us into the columns which are supposed to represent the opinions of the Students' Council. That it should attack the honor of some of the most reputable men who are interested in the re-organization of the C.O.T.C. we are indeed sorry, and we wish to assure those gentlemen that however uncharitable may be the opinions of the man who wrote the editorial in question, the "Daily" is aware that their efforts are honest and unselfish, and will in the future give them all the support which it can, as it has done in the past.

EDITORIAL NOTE

The Memorial Service that is being held Sunday afternoon in honor of the late Sir William Osler, is worthy of more than passing notice. This ceremony is one that concerns the whole undergraduate body of the University, and especially the Faculty of Medicine. Sir William Osler, he who brought such distinction and eminence to the name of McGill, is a man worthy to be honored by the University; no memorial service can be adequate or sufficient expression of thanks and gratitude to this great Master of Medicine. But the Memorial Service is, at least, a manifestation of our appreciation of his efforts, and a reverence to his memory; it is a tribute to one of the finest of men that has ever graduated from our halls of learning.

BANQUET TO GENERAL CURRIE FINE SUCCESS

The Dean said that he was speaking as a McGill man, as one who had been associated with her for years and who loved her well. He said that this was a gathering of McGill men who had served in the great war, and that such places as McGill and all other universities could always be expected to answer the call of duty. College men cherished ideals that were sometimes and this made them all the more sensitive in the hurry and rush of the world, to an appeal to their sense of duty. He said that the memorial tablets erected in universities throughout Canada would long recall to mind the splendid sacrifices of the college men of the past, and concluded his remarks by saying that this banquet was a fitting and a just tribute to General Sir Arthur Currie.

Mr. Learoyd then rose and stated that Colonel Magee had promised him that he would not be required to make a speech, and that this was his excuse for not making one. He said that Dean Moyse had outlined General Currie's career sufficiently, and that he would say nothing about it. He himself regarded the General as an ordinary citizen who, by his energy and military zeal, had risen to the command of one of the finest armies among the Allied nations.

General Currie then addressed the gathering. He said that the cordial welcome he had received had been embarrassing, but at the same time welcome. He regarded it as a great privilege to address these men, most of whom had served under him in France, and said that pressure of work at Ottawa had prevented him from preparing a suitable address. We stood now at the beginning of the New Year. War had been finished for many months but had left us many problems to be solved, which we must cope with to the best of our ability. The last years of the war had been most terrible, said the General, but no country had emerged more honorably from the struggle than Canada. Canada, by her achievements, had won for herself the status of a nation, and her claims to be recognized as a nation were justified.

The Germans, in the beginning of the war, had thought little of the ties of love and loyalty binding Canada to Great Britain. This love of country and loyalty to traditions had led Canada to make sacrifices that could not be imagined by the Teutonic mind.

Furthermore, the war had not been waged by Great Britain for political purposes, but because British traditions had been menaced. Men realized that if Germany won might would triumph over right. The Germans carried on the war with a frightfulness that showed if she were victorious democracy and civilization would receive its wrild.

greatest set-back in the history of the Germany must be defeated. If inspired by these ideals and imbued progress in civilization was to endure, with willingness to fight for their country, the college men had answered the call. The men of Canada had come forward and offered themselves for their country, and the men and women who remained in Canada had stood behind the soldiers in their grand fight for victory. All the resources of the country had been organized and all energies bent towards the one big object — the winning of the war.

General Currie said that the manner in which the Canadians had conducted themselves in the war zone was a matter of history and would always be a source of pride to Canada. Marshal Foch's tribute to the Canadian army was the highest ever given to any army. Foch had said that two of the first battle of Ypres and Amiens, the greatest victories of the war were and these engagements had been won by Canadian troops. It was no surprise to General Currie that the Canadians had won Vimy Ridge. To one hardships of trench warfare with such who had seen them endure the terrible cheerful stoicism, it was no matter of surprise that they should surmount all obstacles and batter their way through to victory at Vimy Ridge.

General Currie liked to believe that the lessons learned in the war had taught us sympathy on confidence in each other. He said that the problems of the present day should be approached with good-will, patience and courage, and stated that class jealousy must be done away with. Men of education, he said, would play a great part in solving modern perplexing questions, and he felt sure that McGill would do her share. He mentioned a conversation he had had with the late Principal of McGill, Sir William Peterson. Sir William said, in the course of their talk, that the mission of McGill was to turn out good men and to pass on the torch of knowledge to succeeding generations. General Currie mentioned many McGill men who had especially distinguished themselves in the war, and appealed to McGill to live up to her high traditions.

In the Militia Department, he said that we must profit by the lessons of the war. We must never allow ourselves to be unprepared, as this caused loss of life and waste of time in the great war. The object was to create a maximum amount of war activity with a minimum amount of economic disturbance. Canada must recognize that her greatest responsibility is her ability to defend herself. To keep alive that Canadian spirit of bravery and initiative, a system had been adopted by which the names and numbers of battalions that had served in France were to be given to military units.

The General stated that a trained staff was of paramount importance in operating an army, and that good equipment was necessary to maintain efficiency. A good army also demanded that the men forming it be physically strong and patriotic. In his schemes of perfecting the Militia Department, General Currie asked for the support of McGill, then dwelt on the splendid work that the C.O.T.C. had done during the war. He said that the University was the best place to secure military training, then afterwards one could join the militia and carry on with their military duties.

He said that no man was fully developed unless he was willing to defend his country, and said that the courses of lectures now open to students would prove useful and would contain up-to-date information. He appreciated the past efforts of the McGill C.O.T.C., and hoped to be of some assistance in getting greater facilities for the C.O.T.C.

He then explained to those present why the battle of Passchendaele had been fought. The French had received a severe set-back on the Aisne, and the British army began a battle at Ypres to keep up the pressure on the Germans and to retain the initiative. The submarine menace was a great source of danger, and it was proposed to capture Zebruge and Ostend, their bases of operation. The British did not succeed in their attempt, and the Canadians were called in and won their great victory of Passchendaele. The great importance of this battle was the moral result of the victory. It gave new life to the British and French armies and changed the aspect of the war entirely. So vitally important was this victory to the French that they presented General Currie with a Croix de Guerre and tendered him a great banquet.

The General closed his address by desiring all college men to create a spirit of willingness to serve throughout the country.

Mr. Macdonald then rose and spoke on the great honor it was for McGill to have Canada's greatest citizen present, and said that General Currie would continue to serve his country as he had in the past.

Lieut.-Col. Strake led the cheering for General Currie. The toast to the King was drunk, and the banquet was brought to a close.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM M. G. BROOKS

the Young Men's Christian Association for the boys of the street and in the schools through the playgrounds and the physical drills.

While Dr. Eddy was here the building committee met, with the Mayor of Colombo in the chair, when it was decided to try to have our new building included in the general scheme for war memorials, so that a separate appeal to the public for funds will not need be made. Dr. Eddy said afterwards that he believed there were few cities in India where it would be possible to get the mayor out at 7.30 in the morning and to take the interest that he had shown in our building enterprise.

Thousands of Anzac troops are at present on their way home from streaming through Colombo every week France, Egypt and Palestine. I took a special train-load of 500 of them to Kandy a few days ago and arranged meals and cars and other conveyances for them to see the sights. This particular crowd had just come from Palestine, and as they rode up the mountain side and looked over the plains and the wonderful luxuriance of green- and the slopes terraced with rice fields, cry that there is in every direction in this island, they felt that they were in a great garden or conservatory as compared with the barrenness of the Holy Land which they had just left. They were greatly interested in the elephants bathing in the streams as we went along, and in all the sights. All the thousands of these troops are looked after in some way or other by our Army Branch, which seems to me to be the best of any that I have seen in India or Mesopot.

Hundreds of poor are gathering outside my window for their daily supply of rice as I sit writing this letter. It is an extremely trying time for the poor here just now. The famines in India have made it impossible for Ceylon to secure its usual supply of rice from there, and in consequence there has been a great scarcity, and the prices have been increased by over one hundred per cent. Every day about a thousand come to this branch to get their meagre supply of what to them is the staff of life. For weeks our social service department has been working with other organizations in helping to alleviate the need of the great bulk of the population in the present trying time.

I have a most interesting Bible Class that has been running for several weeks in which we are taking up the application of the teaching of Jesus to the problem of Ceylon. We have Buddhists, Hindus, Roman Catholics and Protestants present, and sometimes the discussion gets rather hot when there are questions like caste and the dowry system to be dealt with. There are a few of these young men nowadays who really feel that their religions are capable of coping with the problems of modern life. They see that the old beliefs that they have been clinging to so tenaciously for centuries have got to go in the face of the advance of science and the higher teachings and standards of Christianity. And yet they are doing everything they can to bolster up their old faiths so they can put off the day of the collapse just as long as possible. No one who gets on the inside, however, can help but feel that it is a case of a house built on the sand, and that the winds and the storms are now beginning to blow which very shortly must bring down the whole edifice. It is at this critical time that the forces of Christianity need to be maintained at their strongest in order that in leaving their old religions those young men may not leave religion altogether as has happened in so many cases already.

Five extra Ceylonese were admitted into the Civil Service recently, in accordance with the plan of the Government in the hands of the Ceylonese, ment to gradually place more and more There were a great many applications, and the five who were successful were all what we might term "Young Men's Christian Association Men." They had not only been members of our Association, but had taken a prominent part in various activities. This is quite a common occurrence; for we find that our men are in considerable demand for posts where the first qualification required is character. I think it is not too much to say that it is generally recognized by many officials that a man whom the Young Men's Christian Association recommends is a trustworthy man and capable of filling a responsible post.

SHORT COURSE HEAR MUSICAL GOOD CONCERT

Songs, Music, Stories Features Of the Evening.

RINK DESERTED.

Ashby Causes Much Merriment With His Witty Stories and Grotesque Appearance.

"Variety is the spice of life," and this idea seems to permeate the minds of the students of Macdonald College this week in their endeavor to entertain the Short Course students in Agriculture. Last evening the Short Course were the guests of the Macdonald College Literary and Debating Society at a musical programme held in the Assembly Hall at 6.45. While awaiting the appointed hour, Mr. Stanton entertained the audience to a number of selections on the organ, rendered in his usual delightful manner.

Mr. Buckland opened the meeting with a few well chosen words of welcome, and then called on Mr. Bushell for a selection on the piano. The audience was next favored with several selections by "Dinty Moore's Quartette," from Hogan's Alley, composed of Messrs. Hodgins, Derrick, Crang and Gnaedinger, accompanied on the piano by Mr. W. N. Jones. Mr. Hodgins acted as announcer, and his witty remarks brought forth much merriment. He introduced the famous quartette by saying they would sing about one hundred songs, asked for no encores, as they did not wish to sing this number over again. The first item to be given was that famous ballad entitled "Peeping Thru the Knot-hole in Daddy's Woodcock Leg." In reality it proved to be "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia." As an encore, Mr. Hodgins announced the quartette would render that delightful selection, "Mother's Teeth Will Soon Be Susie." This was also a misleading statement, when the strains of "Till We Meet Again" came forth instead. Miss Wheeler then entertained with a proved joyful and delightful to all that an evocative solo, "I Love You Truly," which core was heartily called for.

The true variety turn of the evening came from Mr. Ashby, who proved no end of amusement to his audience with his funny stories, spicy humor and grotesque makeup. The next number on the programme was a solo by Miss Rollins. This was especially a treat to the old students, as Miss Rollins has not been heard at any of the Assembly Hall meetings for some time. Mr. Gnaedinger next favored the audience with a cello solo. The programme was then brought to a close by singing the National Anthem. The contributors to the programme are to be congratulated for their efforts in making the evening an enjoyable one, more especially so, in that they prepared for their parts in a minimum amount of time.

MAC'S WHO'S

Who is the lecturer who set 42 questions as a basis of study (?) on pages of notes for an exam?

Who is the dude of the Freshman class who has been taking advantage of the January sales to provide himself with spats?

Who is the Senior Science girl who was showing about romantic looking professors with longish curly hair?

Who is the girl with the "Annual mouth"? And does it extend from (y)ear to (y)ear?

Who is the Freshman who so successfully found a corn cure for a teacher the other night ever outwitting a certain Senior at the task? He felt like singing alonetta.

Who is the Junior Science girl who hasn't paid her bet made last fall on Sports Day yet? And wouldn't she pay a buck because Buck won?

Who is the Junior Science girl who was heard to remark "Oh, he's cute, he's nice!" about a certain new addition to the bachelor penalty?

Who is responsible for the statement that the "height of aggravation" would be Red at Christmas dinner with a stomach ache?

Who knows whether some of our visitors last Saturday night were the famous Scottstown postcard artists?

Who is the Senior Science girl who when asked "if she were taking this Marriage Course here" replied "Oh, no, I'm taking the old mads course?"

One thing is rather hard to decide who are the best fusers around college. The Animal man would never accept a "poor steer" and is bound to be a real good judge. Again he has to have a thorough knowledge of "chickens" too especially how to give them the best of feeds. He isn't liable to make a pig of himself either, when it comes to skating or dancing record of performance alone will count with him. Nor is the Cerebral man to be despised, he may sow a few wild oats but he would never fail to seed entirely and can be relied upon to know the value of head selection. The Horticulturist is not too bad either. He is well qualified to pick nothing but the best of the peaches and when it comes to "pippins", too, he always should be the best informed. He knows the "wealthy", too, and all about the gooseberries. Yes, taken all around one cannot say that the horticulturist, the animal man or the cereal man won't make good at other things than agriculture.

Who is the girl who keeps track of a certain Junior's smiles at the table and does she wear Peterson's Soles?

Who is the Science girl who gave such an interesting account on the recent exams of her future intentions in the line of housekeeping?

Who is the Freshman who told the instructor in Zoology that a fishes body ended where it's tail began?

SMOKER HELD ON WEDNESDAY HUGE SUCCESS

Everything Went Smoothly From Start To Finish.

FULL OF FUN.

Sport, Music and Comedy Mixed With Smoke and Laughter.

The Smoker held in the Men's Gymnasium Wednesday was a big success. The programme was long and varied, the refreshments were of the very best and, what counts most of all, everyone present had a real good time.

The Gym, which was attractively decorated, began rapidly to fill about 9.15 p.m., and was comfortably crowded at 9.30, when the chairman of the evening, Mr. Bert Matthews, mounted the platform. His first announcement brought forth a storm of applause. It was that the Macdonald baseball team had beaten McGill Reds 29-21. When what he proceeded to outline the idea of the cheering had quietened down some of the Smoker, which was to entertain culture, and also to return the compliments to our guests the Short Course in Agriculture to the Freshman Year for the Matthews then called upon Dr. Harrison Smoker which they held last term. Mr. son B. R. an address.

Dr. Harrison, after surmounting the difficulty of the platform, which appeared rather insecure, gave an outline of the programme which would, he said, show the Short Course some of the varied talent which we had at Macdonald. This talent consisted of musicians, actors. The time for preparing the programme, he said, had been short, nevertheless it was all well arranged, even down to the refreshments and class songs, the Sophomore song being, by the way, "Sally in Our Alley." He hoped that all present would have a thoroughly good time.

After a selection from the band, the first boxing bout took place between McGreer and Amaron. They boxed three rounds, the points being very even. McGreer had a little the advantage in weight, but Amaron had it in speed. The decision of the judge, Mr. McFarlane, was in favor of McGreer. The second bout followed immediately, between Paterson and Schaefer. These two were very evenly matched, so much so, in fact that after they had boxed three rounds, the judge had to declare it a draw.

Then followed another selection from the band. When the various instruments of music (torture) had again been laid to rest (hung over the piano), two stalwart wrestlers entered the ring, their names being Templeton and McKibbin. Templeton was not long in winning the first throw. The second one was somewhat more difficult. McKibbin obtained a neck hold which "Bob" had hard work to get out of. When he was once free of it, however, he soon had McKibbin on his back again. By obtaining two throws "Bob" won the match.

Some present might say that the next star on the programme was the best of the evening. At any rate everyone participated in it with great zest. The sandwiches were good and abundant. Mrs. Wright's cake never tasted better, and Gourd's Champagne! proved an excellent thirst quencher. The cigarettes and cigars circulated around on trays, the thickness of the atmosphere, showing the good use to which they were put.

An event which followed called forth a great deal of laughter and fun was entitled "Selections from Pat and Frank." Their jokes were absolutely the latest creations from the entomology laboratory.

Events which followed were: Songs, by Francis Bouchard, in French; a boxing bout between Cooper and Armistage, resulting in a win for Cooper and further selections from the band.

As twelve o'clock was drawing very near, the various class songs and yells were given; the prizes consisting of boxes of cigars, were presented to the winners of the boxing and wrestling matches, respectively, being Cooper and Templeton, and after giving three cheers for the Short Course guests, and singing God Save the King, a very pleasant evening came to an end.

Correspondence

The Daily is not responsible for the sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculties will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office — that they write upon ONE side of the paper ONLY.

No communication will be admitted in this column without the name of the writer being attached, not necessarily for PUBLICATION.

To the Editor, McGill "Daily."

Dear Sir:— May we have space in your paper to correct a false impression that has been spread broadcast by the Editorial which appeared in yesterday's "Daily"—an Editorial which, we believe, was inserted without the consent or even the knowledge of the "Daily" management.

On behalf of the Returned Undergraduates Association of McGill we beg to state that the Association as a whole is ready to back up any movement that will make for the betterment of this university, or that will assist in procuring further facilities for better Physical and even Military training as long as that training is not inaugurated compulsory! Surely any student of McGill can see that the writer of the Editorial "The Necessity of the Military Spirit at McGill" is imputing absolutely false motives to men like George Macdonald and Allan McGee, who have always had the best interests of the students and of this University at heart.

As President and Officers of the Returned Undergraduates Association the undersigned therefore wish to correct the false impressions that the writer of the Editorial above-mentioned has succeeded in circulating.

D. R. LEAROLD, President.
A. MURRAY ROBERTSON, Vice-Pres.
H. P. McKIM, Secretary.

To the Editor, McGill "Daily."

Dear Sir:— In yesterday's "Daily" there appeared an editorial dealing with the re-organization of the C.O.T.C. at McGill, and the inaugural dinner which was held last night and at which Sir Arthur Currie was the guest of honor.

In the editorial column of to-day's paper, the "Daily" has explained how this happened to be printed and has republished two editorials which have appeared supporting the scheme of re-organization. We wish to emphasize here that the editorial in question was published without either our consent or knowledge, and that it is directly opposed to our opinion as expressed in previous editorials. The night on which the editorial was written we left the "Daily" office as the paper was about to go to press, having been assured that the main editorial for the night was to be entitled "Philosophy," an ad was to conform in all details to the editorial policy of the paper. We knew nothing of the article entitled "The Necessity of the Military Spirit at McGill" until we read the paper next morning.

The member of the staff who wrote this editorial evidently was aware that it would not receive the sanction of the Managing Board, and so, willfully deceived us and included in the editorial column an article which expressed his own personal opinion and not that of the Managing Board, who dictates the editorial policy of the paper.

Unfortunately this article appeared at the worst possible time when no refutation could be published before the inaugural dinner took place. Still more unfortunately it attacked the honor of some prominent graduates of the University, whose greatest interests seem to be siding the undergraduates and their causes, accusing them of employing underhand means to enforce compulsory military training for students of the first two years, and regard the C.O.T.C. as one of the best of alternates to gym work.

If there are sufficient students at the University who wish to carry on military training there should, by all means, be some organization such as the C.O.T.C. which will afford them such opportunities.

We have received much correspondence regarding yesterday's editorial but have omitted this, with the exception of a statement from the Returned Men's Undergraduates' Society, thinking that this letter and our editorial will show, that we as well as the undergraduate body take no stock in the compulsory training scare and are thoroughly in sympathy with the re-organization of the C.O.T.C.

We might say in closing that the writer of the editorial in question has tendered his resignation, and that it has been accepted.

Yours etc.,
E. S. Mills, President.
J. N. PETERSEN, Editor-in-Chief.

To the Editor, McGill "Daily."

Dear Sir:— Evidently the language of my letter in your issue of 28th inst. was stronger than it should have been, to judge from the reply with which I was honored in the following issue of your paper.

It was not my intention to precipitate a controversy, but merely to point out that among men who have studied in other and specialized spheres a very erroneous conception is abroad to the effect that the theological thought, like the Egyptian pyramids, is unchanging throughout the centuries. No one denies the untenability of certain theological speculation which was developed under the influence of a rigorous and unstrained logic. But to-day the attempt is made to keep close to actual life and human experience, to make the whole of life contribute to our view of God and His universe. If I have drawn attention to that fact my object has been attained.

Yours sincerely,
J. GRIER.

DELEGATES REPORT FROM DES MOINES

McGill Delegates Meet At Strathcona Hall To-morrow After "Sing."

The great Des Moines Convention has been past for a considerable time, and as yet no favorable opportunity has been found for the delegates to report to the student body of the University. A meeting planned for the afternoon of Sunday next had to be postponed on account of the Memorial Service at the Cathedral. So it is arranged to give part of the time at the evening "Sing" for brief reports from a few of the delegates.

Those who are at all interested in the movement that brought 7,000 students from all North America together at Des Moines should be there to hear the men and women who represented McGill speak of their own experience there and of impressions received.

There will be a "Sing," but something more, this time.

JUNIOR BASKETBALL. Will the following men turn out at the Central Y.M.C.A. for the exhibition game at 2.45 p.m. On the showing of the men in this match, the Junior team for the City League will largely be picked:

- Mendelsobn.
- Parke.
- Brown.
- Schwartzman.
- Johnson.
- Bussiere.
- Ackman.
- Reid.
- Turpil.
- Powell.
- Cope.
- Root.

MCGILL Y.M.C.A.

The plan of hospitality run by the McGill Y.M.C.A., which was so successful up to the Christmas vacation, has now been re-organized. There is a considerably increased number of families who are anxious to meet McGill men and the Committee has things well in hand for the coming week-end. Will those fellows who are at all interested call round at the Hall, Room "33" to-night from five to six.

R. V. C. HOUSE DANCE.

The faculty and girls of the R.V.C. were hostesses last night at a formal dance held in the Convocation Hall of R.V.C. The hall was most artistically decorated with red and white streamers and McGill shields, while all was pervaded by the rosy glow from the shades in the Hall and various sitting-out rooms. The floor was in excellent condition and the absence of overcrowding was a refreshing change, and inspired some to become quite creative in the terepsichorean art.

Among the guests were: Lord and Lady Conington, M. de Verneuil, and Messrs. P. Anglin, J. Anglin, E. S. Mills, J. L. O'Brien, H. Mott, J. Gibbs, McKenzie, H. Nichol, B. Gordon, J. Mitchell, H. Bustin, E. Cockfield, P. Ross, M. Elliot, C. Austin, L. Thompson, P. W. Little, J. R. Windsor, W. Pickup, A. W. Young, W. McLean, W. Willard, J. B. Mawdsley, P. Emerson, J. Ross, B. Turnbull, B. R. V. C. A.A.

The members of the R.V.C. are invited to attend the basketball game between Toronto and McGill at the Central Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, on Saturday, Jan. 31st, at 3.30 p.m.

R. V. C. HOCKEY MATCH.

The first inter-class hockey match will take place to-day at 9 a.m., when 1st year plays 2nd year. Though the teams are not by any means perfect as yet, the game will be a good one, and worth the while of the other members of these two years turning out to witness it. Mr. Kennedy has had his hands full this month, coaching all the hockey students of R.V.C., and he has done his duty well. If the game is not all it should be, it will not be his fault.

Don't forget the game commences at 9 a.m. sharp, and the first and second years are playing. As in a basketball match, cheering is needed, so in hockey. Come out and cheer your year.

CLASS HOCKEY.

The hockey team representing Dentistry '23 turned up at the Campus rink at the scheduled hour to meet Law 21-22. The Law team failed to appear. Dentistry '23 therefore claim the game.

LECTURES GIVEN BY MR. MIGNAULT

Talks On Legal Ethics Proved Highly Interesting.

An event of interest and importance to the students of the Faculty of Law was the course of two lectures on "Legal Ethics," given by Mr. Justice Mignault, of the Supreme Court of Canada, yesterday and Thursday. The lectures were delivered in the Chemistry theatre and besides practically every student of the Faculty of Law, the audience contained many distinguished members of the Bench and Bar, including Sir Charles Davidson, Dean Lee, Mr. Justice Survever, Mr. Justice Leonard, Mr. Benoit, K.C., Professor McGoun and Professor Smith.

Dean Lee introduced the speaker in a few well chosen words, mentioning the very great honor Mr. Justice Mignault had conferred on the Faculty of Law in coming down from Ottawa to address the students.

During the course of the lectures Mr. Justice Mignault dealt at some length with the twenty-two rules of Legal Ethics as laid down by the General Council of the Bar, explaining carefully each rule with its various ramifications and citing many famous cases to which the various rules were applicable.

Of special interest to the students was the kindly advice of the speaker on the subject of the ambitious young legal luminary starting out on his career. The time-worn platitude—"Honesty is the best policy," declared the speaker, applied more to the legal profession known from time immemorial as a profession of gentlemen, than to any other.

At the conclusion of the lectures, Mr. Justice Survever, on behalf of the Faculty of Law, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Justice Mignault, which was seconded by three rousing cheers from the students. Mr. Survever incidentally remarked that the advocacy of a regular course of lectures on Legal Ethics had been a pet hobby of his for some years, and he hoped that such a course would be incorporated in The legal curriculum before very long.

GYM. CLUB.

There will be a meeting and practice of the above club this afternoon (Saturday) at five in the Central length with the twenty-two rules of

NOTICES

Members of executives and others are requested to look under this heading for notices of all futurities. Each notice is absolutely official. The Editor will not be responsible for errors in articles unless the time and date are written out in full when they are sent in.

RUSSIAN SYMPHONY.

On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 8th, that noted band of musicians, the Russian Symphony Orchestra, will appear at His Majesty's. Their leader is that splendid musician, M. Modest Altschules, who never fails to produce a very interesting programme. This concert is one of that very worthy series which Montrealeers have the opportunity to hear this season.

MEDICAL DINNER ON 7th

Men Are Urgently Requested
To Attend Memorial Service
To Sir William Osler.

The class of Medicine '23 held a meeting in the Old Medical Building yesterday afternoon at four o'clock. Before the meeting proper began J. G. Mackay, the secretary of Strathcona Hall, said a few words about the campaign which the McGill Y.M.C.A. will shortly open. In former years it was the custom of the Association to hold two campaigns during the year. One of these was to obtain money, with which the expenses of the Hall, and the social activities fostered by it were to be paid; the other was to go to the Mission, which McGill supports in Ceylon. This year but one campaign will be held, and it is hoped that enough money will be subscribed to pay for both of these important institutions.

After the departure of Mr. Mackay, four men were appointed to take charge of the subscription list in this class, these are Britton, Sweet, Garfield and Skelton.

The president, Mr. F. W. Knight, appealed to all the members of the class to attend the memorial service to the late Sir William Osler, which will be held in Christ Church Cathedral to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Those who intend to be present are requested to meet at the Union at half past three, and from thence they will proceed to the church.

The class were reminded that the Medical Dinner will be held on the seventh of next month. Elder has been appointed to the committee and will have tickets which the class may purchase from him for the sum of three dollars and a half.

There are fourteen men who have not yet paid their class fees and the treasurer (Wilkie) appealed to them to do so by next Monday in order that he may have a financial report made up to present at the next meeting. Dire results have been prophesied for those who do not respond. Men who are repeating their year are expected to pay as well as their more lucky brothers.

The president drew the attention of the class to the Mock Parliament, the first session of which was held last night. He emphasized the training along various lines which is afforded by this, paying particular attention to that in impromptu public speaking. Both parties will be pleased to outline their platforms and plans for the season to prospective members.

After three men had been nominated for the position Parlow was elected as the representative from Med. '23 to the Medical Dance Committee. Some copies of the printed Pathology notes of Dr. Ortel may be obtained from H. H. Hart, of Med. '22. These notes were printed to aid the students taking the course and some remain unsold.

The main item of business brought before the class was in connection with the King Cook celebration which is yearly undertaken by the Sophomore class. A committee of six were elected to make all preparations in connection with this. These six are Aylward, Elder, Everett, Murphy, Hamilton and Drucker. These men will select a chairman from among their number and will begin immediately to make plans so that the celebration may be held in good time and that those taking part may be sufficiently well rehearsed. The entire class showed much enthusiasm over the coming event and have promised it their entire support. The question of whether only Medical students will be allowed to attend will rest with the committee who will be able to decide this when the number who wish to attend will be known.

In former years owing to the great popularity of this celebration admission had to be restricted to members of the Faculty owing to the lack of accommodation in the Union. Last year as the registration at the University was considerably smaller than normal, members of other faculties were allowed to attend. This year nothing can be said till a later date. A cover of the programme has already been submitted to the committee and probably be chosen. More particulars of this year's King Cook Celebration will be published shortly.

MCGILL MEETS TORONTO AT Y.

Lively Game To Be Staged
This Afternoon At 3.30.

The McGill Intercollegiate basketball team will play its second game of the season this afternoon, when the representatives of the Red and White meet the University of Toronto's quintette at the Central Y.M.C.A. at 3.30 o'clock. McGill has already won one game in the Intercollegiate series, having succeeded in defeating Queen's in the first game, last Saturday. U. of T. has a very strong basketball team, and undoubtedly will cause McGill to go the limit in order to come out on top. With a good turnout of students to urge on the team to greater efforts, however, there is no doubt that the Red and White will put up a good exhibition, and should be able to more than hold their own.

As an added attraction, there will be staged an exhibition game before the Intercollegiate match, between members of the Juniors squad. This preliminary contest will begin at 2.45 p.m.

The Intercollegiate team will be picked from the following: Kern, Montgomery, Hay, Perreault, Little, Litchley, Seath, Young, R. Foss.

On the showing of the members of the Juniors squad the Junior team for the City League series will be chosen. The line-ups for the exhibition game this afternoon will be chosen from: Mendelsohn, Parke, Brown, Schwartzman, Johnson, Bussiere, Achman, Reid, Turpil, Powell, Cope, Root.

are capable of, if they are to come out on top. With a large turnout they are sure to play at their very best. Consequently, it is up to every student to turn out to support the team that will represent the Red and White and cheer them on to victory.

INTERMEDIATE GAME.

The Intermediates will play their regular weekly game at the Victoria Rink this afternoon, when they play Nationals at five o'clock. The game yet lost a game in this league so far, should be a good one, as McGill has not and this afternoon the dope points to another win for the Red and White sextette. In addition, there are three games to be played before the McGill
